DROWNED.

A Boy Loses His Life in the West.

Another life was lost by drowning in the Westlake Park reservoir, at the junction of Seventh and Alvarado streets, yesterday afternoon. About 6 o'clock Stan Cadnus, aged 16 years, a nephew of Dr. Thompson, who resides at the corner of Eighth and Alvarado streets, accompanied by another boy named Robbie Randalls, went to the reservoir to build a wharf for their boat. Young Cadnus saw some timber over on the point suitable for their purpose, and took off his clothes, intending to swim over and get it. Young Randalls attempted to dissuade him from the attempt, telling him, as him from the attempt, telling him it was dangerous, as he could not swim very well, any way. He persisted, however, and entered the water. He did very well until he got about half way over, when he threw up his hands and began to give signs of distress. Young Randalls at once pulled off his clothes and went to the rescue. He reached Cuddeus after he had gone reached Cananda after he had gone down a time or two, and was grasped by the drowning boy and pulled down with him. He finally got loose, but was not strong enough to save his comrade, and made for the shore, when he gave the alarm. A number of men were soon secured and after two hours' dragging the body was recovered. Corporal Meredith was notified and went out to the scene, and after viewing the body it was removed to Dr. Thompson's house, where the inquest will be held. Young Cadmus was an orphan, and was being raised by Dr. Thompson.

THE FLOWER FESTIVAL.

Next Tuesday.

The ladies now so busily engaged in preparing for the Flower Festival are frequently asked by visitors: "What is the purpose of the festival?" A few words of explanation are deemed pertinent by them at this time. The fund-from the last three festivals have been applied to the building of a home for young women coming to the city as strangers or temporarily out of employment. The success of the enterprises and the good work it has done, are well done. It has provided comforts for over 800 young women, and the change in connection with it has added to the scanty incomes of over 40 women. Places have been found for a large number of applicants.

Last year premiums were offered at the festival with the object of increasing an interest in the cultivation of flowers and in the decorative and designing arts. The plan was so successful that it has been adopted again this year.

year. A young architect gained the premium for decoration and design of booths this year, and is superintending the work at the Pavilion. The fifth annual festival will open Tuesday evening of next week at Hazard's Pavilion. The Mayor and other distinguished citizens will be present at the opening exercises. The floor of the hall has

DOUBLE SHOOTING.

FRIGHTFUL TRAGEDY IN AN ALAMEDA-STREET DIVE.

Indications That Blacksmith Charley Scott Sent a Bullet Through the Head of His Woman and Then Shot Himself—The Man Alive at Last Reports.

A frightful double tragedy occurred in the rear of the "Club," at No. 313 Alameda street, in the early hours yesterday morning, although it was not discovered until some hours later. It resulted in the instant death of a French prostitute named Annie Peters and the probably fatal wounding of her lover, a blacksmith named Charley Scott, the younger member of the firm of Bryan & Scott, who have a shop at No. 121 Requena street.

Scott took up with the woman a month or six weeks ago, and wanted her to leave the life she had been leading. She at first consented, and for a time they had room on Los Angeles street and in one or two other places. The woman soon tired of this, and insisted on going back to the old life, in which she was encouraged by several of her former male "friends," who were in the habit of visiting her during Scott's absence from his work. Scott appeared to be much attached to the woman, and finally yielded to her importunities rather than give her up, as she threatened to leave him in case he did not comply with her wishes, and about a week or ten days ago they moved into the house where the tragedy occurred. They appeared to get along about as well as people of that class generally, and nothing out of the ordinary routine was noticed about them. Scott provided very well for the woman, hiring a Chinese cook for her, and giving her whatever she wanted.

Thursday night they went to the circus, returning to their place between 1 and 2 o'clock. They were in a good humor, and about 3 o'clock into the house, Scott came out again alone, and went to a saloon adjoining, where he took a drink of brandy with the barkeeper, and also had a small bottle filled, which he carried back with him. This was the last seen of him or the woman that night, and no unusual noises were heard in the room.

About 1 o'clock yesterday morning the policeman on Alameda street, who was standing by the name of Court, talking with one or two men, heard a couple of pistol shots, which apparently came from up the street. They sounded quite loud, and the officer ran toward the place to investigate, accompanied by the men, but could not locate the place where the shots were fired. The policeman, however, gave up the search, thinking that it was some hoodlum who had fired off his pistol while drunk, or something of that kind.

At 7 o'clock yesterday morning the policeman on Alameda street, who was standing by the name of Court, talking with one or two men, heard a couple of pistol shots, which apparently came from up the street. They sounded quite loud, and the officer ran toward the place to investigate, accompanied by the men, but could not locate the place where the shots were fired. The policeman, however, gave up the search, thinking that it was some hoodlum who had fired off his pistol while drunk, or something of that kind.

The room is a very small one—not more than 8x10—the only articles of furniture being a bed, a large new trunk, a small table and a chair, on which was a box. The bed was directly to the right of the door, against the wall, occupying the greater part of the room, and the bed was occupied by the woman, in her night clothes, both covered with blood, which had flowed from ghastly wounds in her head, and had run down on the floor, where it stood in great pools.

The man and woman lay close together, in fact touching each other with their faces upturned, and between them lay the instrument with which the bloody deed had been committed—a .38-caliber bulldog pistol, with two chambers empty. Scott was on the outer edge of the bed, and was breathing heavily. The woman lay on the inside, and was cold in death. There was a rather pleasant smile on her face, and all the appearances seemed to indicate that she had been sleeping, the body lying in a perfectly natural position, with nothing that showed that there had been any struggle, or, in fact, that there had been a single movement after the fatal shot had been fired. The woman was shot in the left side of the head, the bullet entering just above the ear and penetrating the brain. The man was shot in the left side of the head, on a direct line with the eyes, which were swollen and black, and from the position in which the bodies lay, and the place where the pistol was found, it is judged that the man had waited until the woman dropped off to sleep, when he placed the muzzle of the pistol against her head and fired, and without changing his position turned the weapon against his own head and fired the second shot.

As soon as the frightened Chinaman recovered from the shock he rushed into an adjoining saloon and gave the alarm. The news seemed to spread like wildfire, and in a few minutes a large crowd had collected about the place. A messenger was sent for Dr. J. J. Choate, and the police station was telephoned to send down officers to preserve order.

A Times reporter arrived at the place a short time after the discovery of the bodies, and, after some trouble, made his way through the crowd and got into the room, where the Doctor, District Attorney Kelly, a short-hand reporter and several police officers were found. Coroner Meredith had been sent for but could not be found, and in his absence Mr. Kelly was endeavoring to get Scott's statement. Everybody had a theory as to how it all occurred, and all were talking at once. Scott, in the meantime, under the influence of stimulants, had revived, and gave in substance the following version of the affair: He said that he and the woman had come home from the circus, and retired as usual, he laying his pistol, together with his pants, on a chair by the side of the bed. Some time afterward he was awakened by a pistol shot, and saw something dark in the room. All most immediately after there was a second shot, and he felt that he had been hit. He then became unconscious, and when he came to his senses he felt as if he was freezing, and got up and shut the door. This part of the story is probably true, as there was blood on the sole of his foot, where he had stepped in the pools by the side of the bed. He was then taken with nausea and vomited a great deal, when he again became unconscious.

ment, Father Gragan, who had been sent for, arrived, and the room was cleared while the priest heard his confession, and administered the last rites of the church. Of course, what transpired during the confession will never be known, but in answer to questions afterward, he stated that the woman had shot him, but afterward denied that he had shot her. He said that some men had been trying to get her to leave him, and seemed to wish to create the impression that some one had come into the room and first shot the woman and then himself.

In the meantime, stories were flying about thick and fast, and all sorts of rumors were current. They were, of course, all pure guesswork, as absolutely nothing is known beyond what the surroundings would indicate or what Scott himself says. It was stated that there had been a row between the woman and the blacksmith, and that he knew something was wrong Thursday, but could not tell what it was, and no one seemed to be able to tell, though every one was willing to advance a theory.

Scott's partner says that he came to this city from New York about a year and a half ago, and has been associated with him ever since, first being in his employ, and afterwards going into partnership with him. He was a very steady, reliable man, and a first-rate workman, and made a great many friends in his business.

The woman, Annie Peters, or Pierre, as she is sometimes called, is, or was, a French prostitute, and lived for 12 or 15 years with a man by the name of Pierre. This man left her a month or six weeks ago and went north, when she took up with Scott. It is claimed that several men in the city have been trying to get her to break off with Scott, and that she was trying to do so, which was the cause of the trouble between them.

Coroner Meredith arrived at the house between 3 and 4 o'clock and took charge of the body, which was at once removed to Orr & Sutch's, on Spring street, where an autopsy was held last night. The inquest will be held at 7:30 o'clock this evening.

Scott was left at the house, with a nurse, where Dr. Choate is attending him. He is doing very well, and at a late hour last night was sleeping quietly. There is perhaps one chance in a thousand of his recovery. He may linger for a week or ten days, in which case there is a probability that the true story of the shooting may be developed. A Times reporter yesterday afternoon interviewed a Miss Court, who lives at No. 373 Los Angeles street, where Scott and the woman had rooms before they went to Alameda street, and from what she says, there can be no doubt but what Scott did the shooting. Miss Court said that she had known Annie Peters for some time before she took up with Scott, and while she was living with Pierre. When they came to her house, Annie told her that she and Scott were married, but that she was getting tired of him, and that she liked him by name came to her. She said that she had seen him go back to her former lover. She also said that men would come to the house and talk to her, and that afterward the woman would become discontented, and say that she wanted to go off. Court said that she had seen her repeatedly about the way she was doing, and told her that if she did not stop it Scott would kill her. This did not seem to worry her, although she said that she knew he would do it, and kept up her efforts to try and get away from him. She said that she was not surprised when she heard of the shooting.

SINKING FAST.

At 2:30 o'clock this morning Scott was apparently sinking very fast. The discoloration and swelling in the face had greatly increased, and he had quit talking. The attendants thought that he was dying, and that he could not last, at the outside, more than a very few hours.

Power of Association.

(New York Weekly.)

Mrs. de Temper (looking up from the paper): Well, I declared another woman, single-handed has captured a burglar. I should think she would have been killed by the brute; but the papers say the moment she grabbed the poker and made a dash for him his feet trembled and he hit the floor, and he sank to the floor in a faint.

Mr. de Temper: He is probably a married man.

AN ASTONISHING CHANGE.

The man and woman lay close together, in fact touching each other with their faces upturned, and between them lay the instrument with which the bloody deed had been committed—a .38-caliber bulldog pistol, with two chambers empty. Scott was on the outer edge of the bed, and was breathing heavily. The woman lay on the inside, and was cold in death. THE SANTA MONICA FESTIVAL OF FLOWERS.

Full Description of the Decorations of the Hall and the Booths Where the Ladies Shine and Dispense Posies and Goodies.

The Flower Festival at Santa Monica began last evening. The new Presbyterian Church was artistically decorated with evergreens and a large variety of flowers.

The evening's entertainment was opened by the "March of the Flowers," rendered by 50 young ladies and misses dressed in white, each one representing some particular flower. Each wore floral decorations in harmony with the flower represented. Entering from opposite sides, they marched and counter-marched with faultless step, singing a selection from the "Flower Queen." One of the most charming features, which called forth hearty applause, was the character sustained with perfect grace by Beth Myers, a pretty little miss 8 years old.

The various booths were arranged and decorated with taste, each booth having a distinctive color. The credit of the pretty feature was due to the committees of the several booths, who planned and arranged them after their own designs.

The stage decoration was under the management of Mrs. M. E. Chapin and Mrs. E. H. Sweetser. It had a background of fan and date palm leaves with cypress drapery, and a base of clusters of callas and cannas, flanked on each side by banks and terraces of roses interwoven with sunlaik and ivy. Two large baskets of melanthus major, with their flowers placed on each side of the stage, gave a handsome effect.

The boutonniere and confection booth had a background of cypress clippings, and decorations and mottoes made of double geraniums.

A beautiful date palm blossom, 18 inches long, presented by Mr. Claybrook, was the center of attraction. It was taken from a palm tree 17 years old, and in appearance looked like a large white plume gracefully shooting from a long pod having two hollow sides, which protected the flower until in full blossom. This booth was especially attractive in sweets and delicacies, being in charge of Misses Alice Morse, Mattie Rubicum, Mary Rubicum and Florence Leavitt.

The fern booth was arranged under the supervision of Mrs. W. S. Yawter, Miss May Linton and Mrs. E. J. Yawter. The design was a shaded cañon, arched by trees and shrubbery; a rippling brook, with moss-covered rocks, and ferns growing in quiet solitude. Two gray owls sat side by side among the foliage in the background, looking wisely on.

The ice-cream booth, ornamented with marguerites and ivy, was represented by Mrs. W. T. Gillis, Miss Jennie Dunn and Miss Josie McComas.

The cloak booth—a bower of cypress and ivy, trimmed with the pepper, trimmed with red geraniums—was attractively attended by Misses Clara Dustin, Helen Ward and Florence Rubicum.

The art booth (colors, white and blue) had a background of cypress and ivy, trimmed with the pepper, trimmed with red geraniums—was attractively attended by Misses Clara Dustin, Helen Ward and Florence Rubicum.

The lemonade booth has a canopy well curbed, trimmed with marigolds, nasturtiums and sunflowers. The color of this booth is yellow. A moss-covered bucket, with harmonizing suggestions of shade and a cool retreat for the thirsty traveler, is doubly inviting by the assistance of the fair hands which give the cup. Misses Emma Folsom, Laura Andrews, Kate Monroe and Mrs. E. C. Andrews reign here.

Strawberries and cream are furnished at the pink booth, which has bower with an arch trimmed with ivy and running vines. The roof is thatched with cypress branches, ornamented with lantana roses and pink daisies. In front of this booth is a beautiful umbrella made of geraniums, Australian peas, fuschias and roses, bordered with a fringe of pink-colored pampas plumes. Misses Emma Volkman, G. A. Potter, Maggie Henderson and Mrs. W. L. Tierney preside.

Two rose terraces flanking each side of the stage form an attractive feature. They were arranged by Mrs. Joseph Clark, Mrs. C. B. Van Avery and Mrs. G. A. Treadwell.

One booth represents a grotto, the collection being of leaves without flowers, and is as attractive and interesting as its more brilliant neighbors. Ferns, grasses and vines mingle in graceful harmony, and were arranged by Misses Fannie Lindsey, Ida Ward and Mrs. L. E. Hubble.

This evening's entertainment has a local musical programme, furnished by local talent. Saturday will close the festival with what is announced as a "general jollification," including the "March of the Flowers," repeated by special request. The attendance is all that could be wished by those managing the festival, and is a credit to the charming city by the sea.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

Dr. Fay's sermon tomorrow ought to draw.

Gottlieb Collinsky of Austria was admitted to citizenship yesterday in Judge McKinley's court.

Ben O. Mboades telegraphed from Madrid that the Lankershim ranch sale is a success, and will be continued today.

Chahuanga Tribe, Improved Order of Red Men, gave a delightful banquet at the Vienna Bakery, last night at 12 o'clock.

Yesterday a one-third interest in Martel Park, at the end of Temple street, was sold for $10,000 to S. Brown and M. Dong.

In Judge Cheney's court yesterday, Hardy Moulton was tried for stealing a set of harness from Mr. Lilly, on Tenth street, in January last. He was found guilty, and will be sentenced Monday next.

At the Y.M.C.A. gospel meeting, for young men, on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, O. B. Reed, the evangelist, will give a short address. These meetings are still held in the Opera-house Hall, and are open to all young men.

An ordination service is to be held at St. Paul's Episcopal Church this morning, beginning at 10 o'clock, at which Bishop Wingfield of the diocese of Northern California will officiate for Bishop Kip. Rev. Mr. Klenzie will be advanced to the priesthood.

In the case of the Chautauque Literary Association vs. the Methodist Episcopal Association of Long Beach, Judge Shaw has rendered a decision in favor of the plaintiffs, finding judgment for them of $150. A stay of 30 days in the proceedings has been granted.

The following marriage licenses were granted yesterday: Gavler Gardner, aged 29, and Louise Hingoyen, aged 18; Louis Antler, aged 29, and Sarah Cohen, aged 18; G. H. March, aged 23, and Della Hughes, aged 19; Edwin Cawston, aged 22, and Mary Routh, aged 22.

Articles of association were filed yesterday for the Beer Bottling Company. The directors of the company are James E. Calvin, Harry Coburn, Sr., Charles Wetzel, Max J. Ahrens and Louis A. Ahrens. The capital stock is $100,000, all subscribed.

Leave was granted the District Attorney yesterday by Judge Cheney to file a new complaint against Salla Espinosa, who is charged with obtaining property under false pretenses. Salla is the girl who fraudulently took goods from Robinson's store, claiming they were for Mrs. Nick Corbett.

Coroner Mendenhall received a telegram yesterday afternoon, to the effect that a man at the German Colony, two miles and a half from that place, had committed suicide, and asking him to come down. No particulars are given. Mr. Meredith will go down on the first train this morning.

The regular weekly meeting of the Park Commissioners was held last night in the Mayor's office, with Messrs. Hutton, Wicks and Hubbell present. In the absence of the Mayor, Mr. Wicks presided. The minutes of the two previous meetings were read and approved, and some routine business was transacted, but nothing of importance, owing to the small attendance.

An inquest was held on the remains of Jacob Hommel, who committed suicide at his home on Temple street, Thursday afternoon, at 8 o'clock, yesterday morning. The jury returned a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane. There were no new developments beyond what has been heretofore published. The body has been embalmed and will be shipped east for interment.

Thomas J. Shields, sent down from San Fernando a few days ago to serve out a 30-day sentence for obtaining money under false pretenses, was released from the County Jail yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus. The magistrate who sentenced him exceeded his authority, in that he tried the case, whereas he should have merely examined him, and then held him to appear before the Superior Court.

Chief Burns was busy yesterday receiving the congratulations of his friends on the efficient police arrangements which prevailed while the circus was in the city. A number of special officers were put on, and a number of the regulars put on extra duty, and so closely was everything watched that not a pocket was picked nor a man robbed—a rather pleasing variation from the former records, when the large crowds were considered.

PERSONAL NEWS.

A. J. Wadsworth of San Diego is at the Nadeau.

T. E. Langley, a Riverside fruit-packer, is at the Hollenbeck.

PEOPLE'S STORE.

Daily Bulletin of the Leading Dry Goods House.

SATURDAY, April 13, 1889.

BOOK DEPARTMENT.

That we live in a cultured community is more strongly attested by the overwhelming patronage bestowed on our book department. In fact, we find people hungry for the newest and freshest editions from the press, who are somewhat surprised to find in our new department books that can be purchased elsewhere. Our prices are at all times lower than the publishers' marked rates, on each book, or, in other words, we give to our patrons part of the publishers' percentage allotted us for the sale of these publications.

BEING READ.

Thou Shalt Not, 30c.

My Hero, 10c.

The Ironmaster, by Ohnet, 30c.

Who Cares? 30c.

Story of an African Farm, 10c.

SHOE DEPARTMENT.

Men's calf shoes, latest styles, $2.10 a pair; worth $2.50.

Ladies' dongola kid button shoes, $1.75; worth $2.00.

Ladies' pebble grain button shoes, opera toe, $1.45.

Miss Mat kid patent leather tip shoes, $1.49; worth $1.75.

Children's curacao kid button shoes, 12 to 2, $1.39; worth $1.55.

Children's curacao kid button shoes, 3 to 5, $1.39; worth $1.55.

The ladies' dongola kid button shoes on sale today at $1.75 are the best goods for the money ever put together, being the production of Nathan D. Dodge of Newburyport, Mass., which is sufficient guarantee of their lasting quality. The ladies' grain shoes at $1.49 are wear-resistant and perfect in shape. The wear-resistant shoes at $1.49 can't be matched under $2.50 anywhere in town.

STATIONERY DEPARTMENT.

It's a well known saying that for whatever you want in the wearing line for children, men or women, you can find it at the People's Store. We aim to have everything that the wants of our patrons demand.

Eye shades, for reading, 10c; worth 25c.

Eye shades, for reading, 10c; worth 25c.

Eye pocket memorandum books, 4c; worth 10c.

Footest rollers, 25c; worth 40c.

Patent indelible pencils, 10c; worth 25c.

Patent rollers, 5c; worth 10c.

Envelopes, 3c in package, 4c; worth 10c.

Pens, all kinds, 4c a dozen.

CLOTHING DEPARTMENT.

Men's frock and sack suits, $2.98 a suit, being coat, vest and pants.

Men's union suiters suits, $4.95, being coat, vest and pants.

Men's wool cloth suits, $5.99, being coat, vest and pants.

The reason we mention coat, vest and pants is that the pants alone of any of the above suits cannot be purchased elsewhere for the price of the suit. Our clothing department has no rival on this coast for no establishment is in a position to sell clothing at prices that we do.

HAT DEPARTMENT.

Children's Sailor Hats, 25c.

Boys' Straw Hats, $1.50.

Boys' Soft Felt Hats, 40c.

Men's Straw Hats, New Shapes, 35c.

Men's Fine French Felt Hats, $1.50; worth $2.50 elsewhere.

The life of sailor hats we have are in white, brown, mixed straw, etc., and are prime goods and worth much more than 25c. In fact our prices in the hat department are quite a revelation.

DOMESTIC DEPARTMENT.

Bateana, High Novelty, Design, 12 1/2 yd. Yard, Bleached Canton Flannel, 6 1/2 yd. Yard, Apron Check, 5 1/2 yd. Yard.

Yard, All-linen Crash, 5 yd. Yard.

The fine, high-art, novelty, patterned at 12 1/2 yd. yard, on sale today, should not be confounded with the narrow-grade goods elsewhere at same price; our grade is fine, glossy, soft and lustrous, and at 12 1/2 yd. yard, considering the width, is a great bargain.

DRESS GOODS DEPARTMENT.

4-Cashmerettes, All New Colors, 15 yd. Yard; worth 25c.

28-inch Damasse Dress Goods, at 15 yd. Yard; worth 40c.

Double-fold Alpaca, 15 yd. Yard; worth 35c.

Thirty-eight-inch, all-wool virgin wool, 30c; worth 60c.

Black and white silk, 50c; worth $1.25.

Big bargains enumerated above. All our tooting could not convince you unless you will personally inspect our offerings.

HOSIERY DEPARTMENT.

Ladies' fancy hose, 15c; worth 25c.

Children's black curly hose, 10c; worth 25c.

Nottingham bed sets, $1.49; worth $2.50.

Black jet-edging, 2 1/2 yd. yard; worth 50c.

Saturday is always a big day in hose—the bargains we offer are prime. The child's hose at 10c and 15c, and will be a saving to you of 10c a pair.

LADIES' UNDERWEAR DEPARTMENT.

The Petticoat, 10c; worth 25c.

Ladies' French Balbriggan Vests, 30c; worth 50c.

Ladies' Embroidered Muslin Skirts, 90c; worth $1.50.

The Taylor Blouse, 10c; worth 25c.

The embroidered muslin skirt at 90c is a marvel, trimmed with wide embroidery and having a full and ample skirt, and is worth double.

PERFUMERY DEPARTMENT.

Cloth brushes, 10c each; worth 25c.

Rose dressing comb, 10c each; worth 25c.

Children's soap, 10c each; worth 25c.

Cape May bouquet soap, 10c; worth 25c.

Face cream, 10c; worth 25c.

Shaving cream, 10c; worth 25c.

Ladies' toilet soap, 10c; worth 25c.

Ladies' cologne, 10c; worth 25c.

Ladies' cologne, 10c; worth 25c.

NOTION DEPARTMENT.
